

Long-Term Care Insurance

Tax Advantages for Individuals

Purchasing a tax-qualified long-term care insurance policy may offer tax advantages.

Long-term care insurance premiums may be tax deductible

Under current tax laws, you may be able to deduct a portion of the premium you pay for a tax-qualified long-term care insurance policy. Each year, the federal government sets limits for eligible premium – the amount that may be deducted.

The eligible premium amount may be claimed as a medical expense as long as your combined medical expenses exceed 10 percent of your adjusted gross income and you itemize deductions on your federal income-tax return (7.5 percent for those 65 and over through 2016).

Eligible Premium Guidelines for 2013
At age:	You can deduct:
40 and younger	$360
41-50	$680
51-60	$1,360
61-70	$3,640
71 and older	$4,550

Eligible premiums are established annually based on the medical care components of the Consumer Price Index.

Long-term care insurance policy benefits are intended to be tax-free

The benefits you receive from a tax-qualified long-term care insurance policy are intended to be tax free as long as they do not exceed the greater of your qualified long-term care daily expenses or the per-day limitation, which is $320 in 2013.

Out-of-pocket long-term care expenses also may be tax deductible

If you pay long-term care expenses out of your own pocket (i.e., home care services, nursing home care, etc.), you generally may claim these expenses as a medical deduction on your income tax return. The only exception is payment for home care provided by a family member. These expenses are not deductible unless the family member is a licensed health-care professional.
