

You work at your business, when will your business work for you...

Here are six questions that every business owner should ask:

- Do you want to transfer your business at retirement or keep it until death?
- If you leave at retirement, do you need your business to provide your retirement income?
- How much income will you need to provide the lifestyle you want in retirement?
- If you are keeping the business until death, do you know who you want to transfer your business to? Is that person ready, willing and able to buy and manage the business?

- How much is your business worth? Could you sell it for that amount now?
- Can you transfer your business to a family member and still be paid the income you need?

If you answered “I don’t know” to any of the questions, we can help you develop a well-thought-out exit plan.
